Dear Kelley,

I am very happy to send the readers of the Messenger a communication from their university. We in the department of physical education are very happy to recall the statement of Dr. A. Maud Royden the great woman sociologist. She said, "You cannot break Nature's law, but you can break yourself against Nature's law." This is a statement worthy of consideration by all of us. I saw in last night's paper that Miss Royden had landed in America only yesterday. There was great fear for her safety. She came to America on an English freighter.

The students will hear and read much concerning what she says to young America.

Sincerely,

FCA/PG
