

December 29, 1939.

Mr. Luke F. Woodall,
Chief Engineer,
Division of State Parks,
State Capitol,
Atlanta, Georgia.

Dear Mr. Woodall:

Do not think that I have been unmindful of my very pleasant acquaintance with you when I met you with Coach Bill Alexander at East Lake Country Club last summer. No, indeed, I have not forgotten the pleasure, and I will not.

As soon as I received your letter I got in touch with Reaves Peters, and the date was December 9th at the Hotel Continental in Kansas City. Reaves Peters is the commissioner for the appointment of football officials for the Big Six Conference. I told him about you, but of course he would not tell me whom he was going to appoint. He had the authority in working with you people down there, and all I could do was tell him what a fine official you were. Of course, these commissioners will not comment. Coach Faurot, of the University of Missouri, might have had something to do with the picking of these men, but the commissioners say not.

You have certainly had a very busy and successful officiating schedule this fall, and in looking over the list I see you got to work some mighty good ones.

I regret that I was unable to do the thing that I would liked to have done for you. You can always count on me giving you a boost any time that you write me. If I ever get back to Atlanta I will consider my pleasure cut short if I do not have in my itinerary a golf game at East Lake, and my sincere wish is that I will run across you and Alec again.

With all good wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year,
I am

Very sincerely yours,

Director of Physical Education and Recreation,
Varsity Basketball Coach.
