

Dr. Allen:

I am submitting the following comments regarding the spring schedule.

In appraising the offering of courses necessary to carry on our professional school and at the same time meet the Navy requirements, I find that I am faced with a manpower shortage in scheduling personnel to handle the same.

After assigning a full teaching load to each of our staff, I find a total of 32 instruction hours remaining to be assigned. It seems advisable under the circumstances to add instructors to handle this overload.

Our offering is still too meager in attractive activities. We should probably offer more sections in wrestling, boxing and apparatus, especially for the benefit of the Navy. It is my understanding that Navy men may enroll in these activity classes in lieu of general physical education.

By permitting the Navy men to enroll in activities, I am sure each instructor will be able to appraise and be responsible for the class records of these men. It has been very difficult under the irregular enrollment of Navy men in Physical Education for any one instructor to assume this responsibility. I am sure this will solve a great many problems in keeping the records straight.

Ray Kanehl