Dear Phog:

I am interested in getting some enthusiasm for skiing as a winter sport here, and find that Finn B. Jensen, who was born in Iceland and raised in Norway, is a fairly accomplished skier and would be glad to undertake coaching of this work--of course, without compensation--in connection with his duties as a teacher in the Business School.

I talked with the members of the Athletic Board about it but they thought it was in the province of physical education as it was not an intercollegiate sport.

What would you think of having Mr. Jensen serve as ski coach to help amateur skiers this winter? As I say, there is no question of compensation, and no question of formal courses or credits.

Sincerely yours,

Deane W. Malott
Chancellor
