

October 25, 1938.

Mr. Raymond Nichols,
Chancellor's Office.

Dear Mr. Nichols:

I wish to call your attention to the very poor lighting condition in room 204 Robinson Gymnasium. The glare which comes through the windows from the white side of the auditorium almost blinds the teacher who is conducting a class in that room.

I seriously believe that something should be done to give better lighting in that room, and I am wondering if we should take this matter up with Mr. Bayles. Venetian blinds would solve the problem, but we are afraid they would be abused in a class room. I should be glad to have your suggestion.

We have requested Mr. Bayles to move the blackboard in room 202 from the west wall to the south wall to help the situation in this room. This room, also, should be better lighted.

Very sincerely yours,
