Dear Gale:

We have just returned from playing the Missouri Tigers at Columbia. While we were in Kansas City, we picked up the Kansas City Times and discovered that you had won the Championship outright without a loss of a single game.

Please convey my congratulations to your stars, Albright, Eggleston, Scanton, Costello, and the rest of the teammembers.

It is a fine thing for the boys that they can win this coveted title. With all good wishes, I am

Dear Jack:

It was swell of you to remember us at Columbia last night. The wire came in fine time, and I read it to the entire group. All of the boys voted Jack Copeland not only a swell fellow but a man who thinks of his friends at the right time.

We were glad to plaster the Tigers not only for our own sakes but for our friends. The fact that you wired helped immensely.

Jack, this will serve a good purpose in thanking you and Mrs. Copeland for the very lovely afternoon we had together. It was highly enjoyable and I wish you would thank Mrs. Copeland for me.

Dear Phog:

Well, after the slammings of the various sports critics I still insist my observations of the game were correct. I'm sorry we had to rush from Stillwater, but you know how it is to get out of that town. Saw you and the fine boys from across the bench, and don't mind telling you I'm still proud of that Kansas team.

As for Iba's charge that he covered Bob, that's a lot of hooey. At the half I went to Parke Carroll and Larson complaining against the close contact. I realize that they called a lot of fouls on the Aggies for such close guarding, but to me that isn't basketball. I may be more or less a hero worshipper, and I'm proud to be one, but that exhibition of disgusting play wasn't to my liking. Frankly, Engleman was at his best. He got four shots at the basket, and two were good, I believe the officials were correct in calling back one, but the other was as bona fide goal as you, or any other person, shall ever see!

I don't know Howard other than to speak to him, but some time when you get a chance tell him that he was truly a victim of a good defense plus a lot of abuse. Henry and myself remarked coming home from the game that good officiating would have stopped a lot of that. You will recall me telling you that I consider Larson a poor official. I have written him in the same vein. Not in the spirit of berating him, but rather with the idea that he should improve. Furthermore, I explained to him that you were very much in favor of his good snap judgment.

As for Iba's explaining to the press about his stopping Bob, I still say phooey. Bob had the ball plenty and you can see from accompanying writeup that I appreciated his play. More than that, Bob was the smartest man on the floor that night. As a coach, you perhaps may not notice the things we in the press box see. No less than fifteen times during the time Howard played he was fouled without the infraction being called. I doubt if the boy will tell you this, but as a student of the game for a long time I'll tell you that it happened. I know that no two officials can see 'em all. But time and again out-of-bounds plays were given to the Aggies on too many steps. That, I sincerely believe, is being a bit too technical when clubs are keyed up.

Dr. F. C. Allen - 2

After the Aggie demonstration before the game I was surprised that even as fine a player as Engleman could even so much as see the ball, much less score.

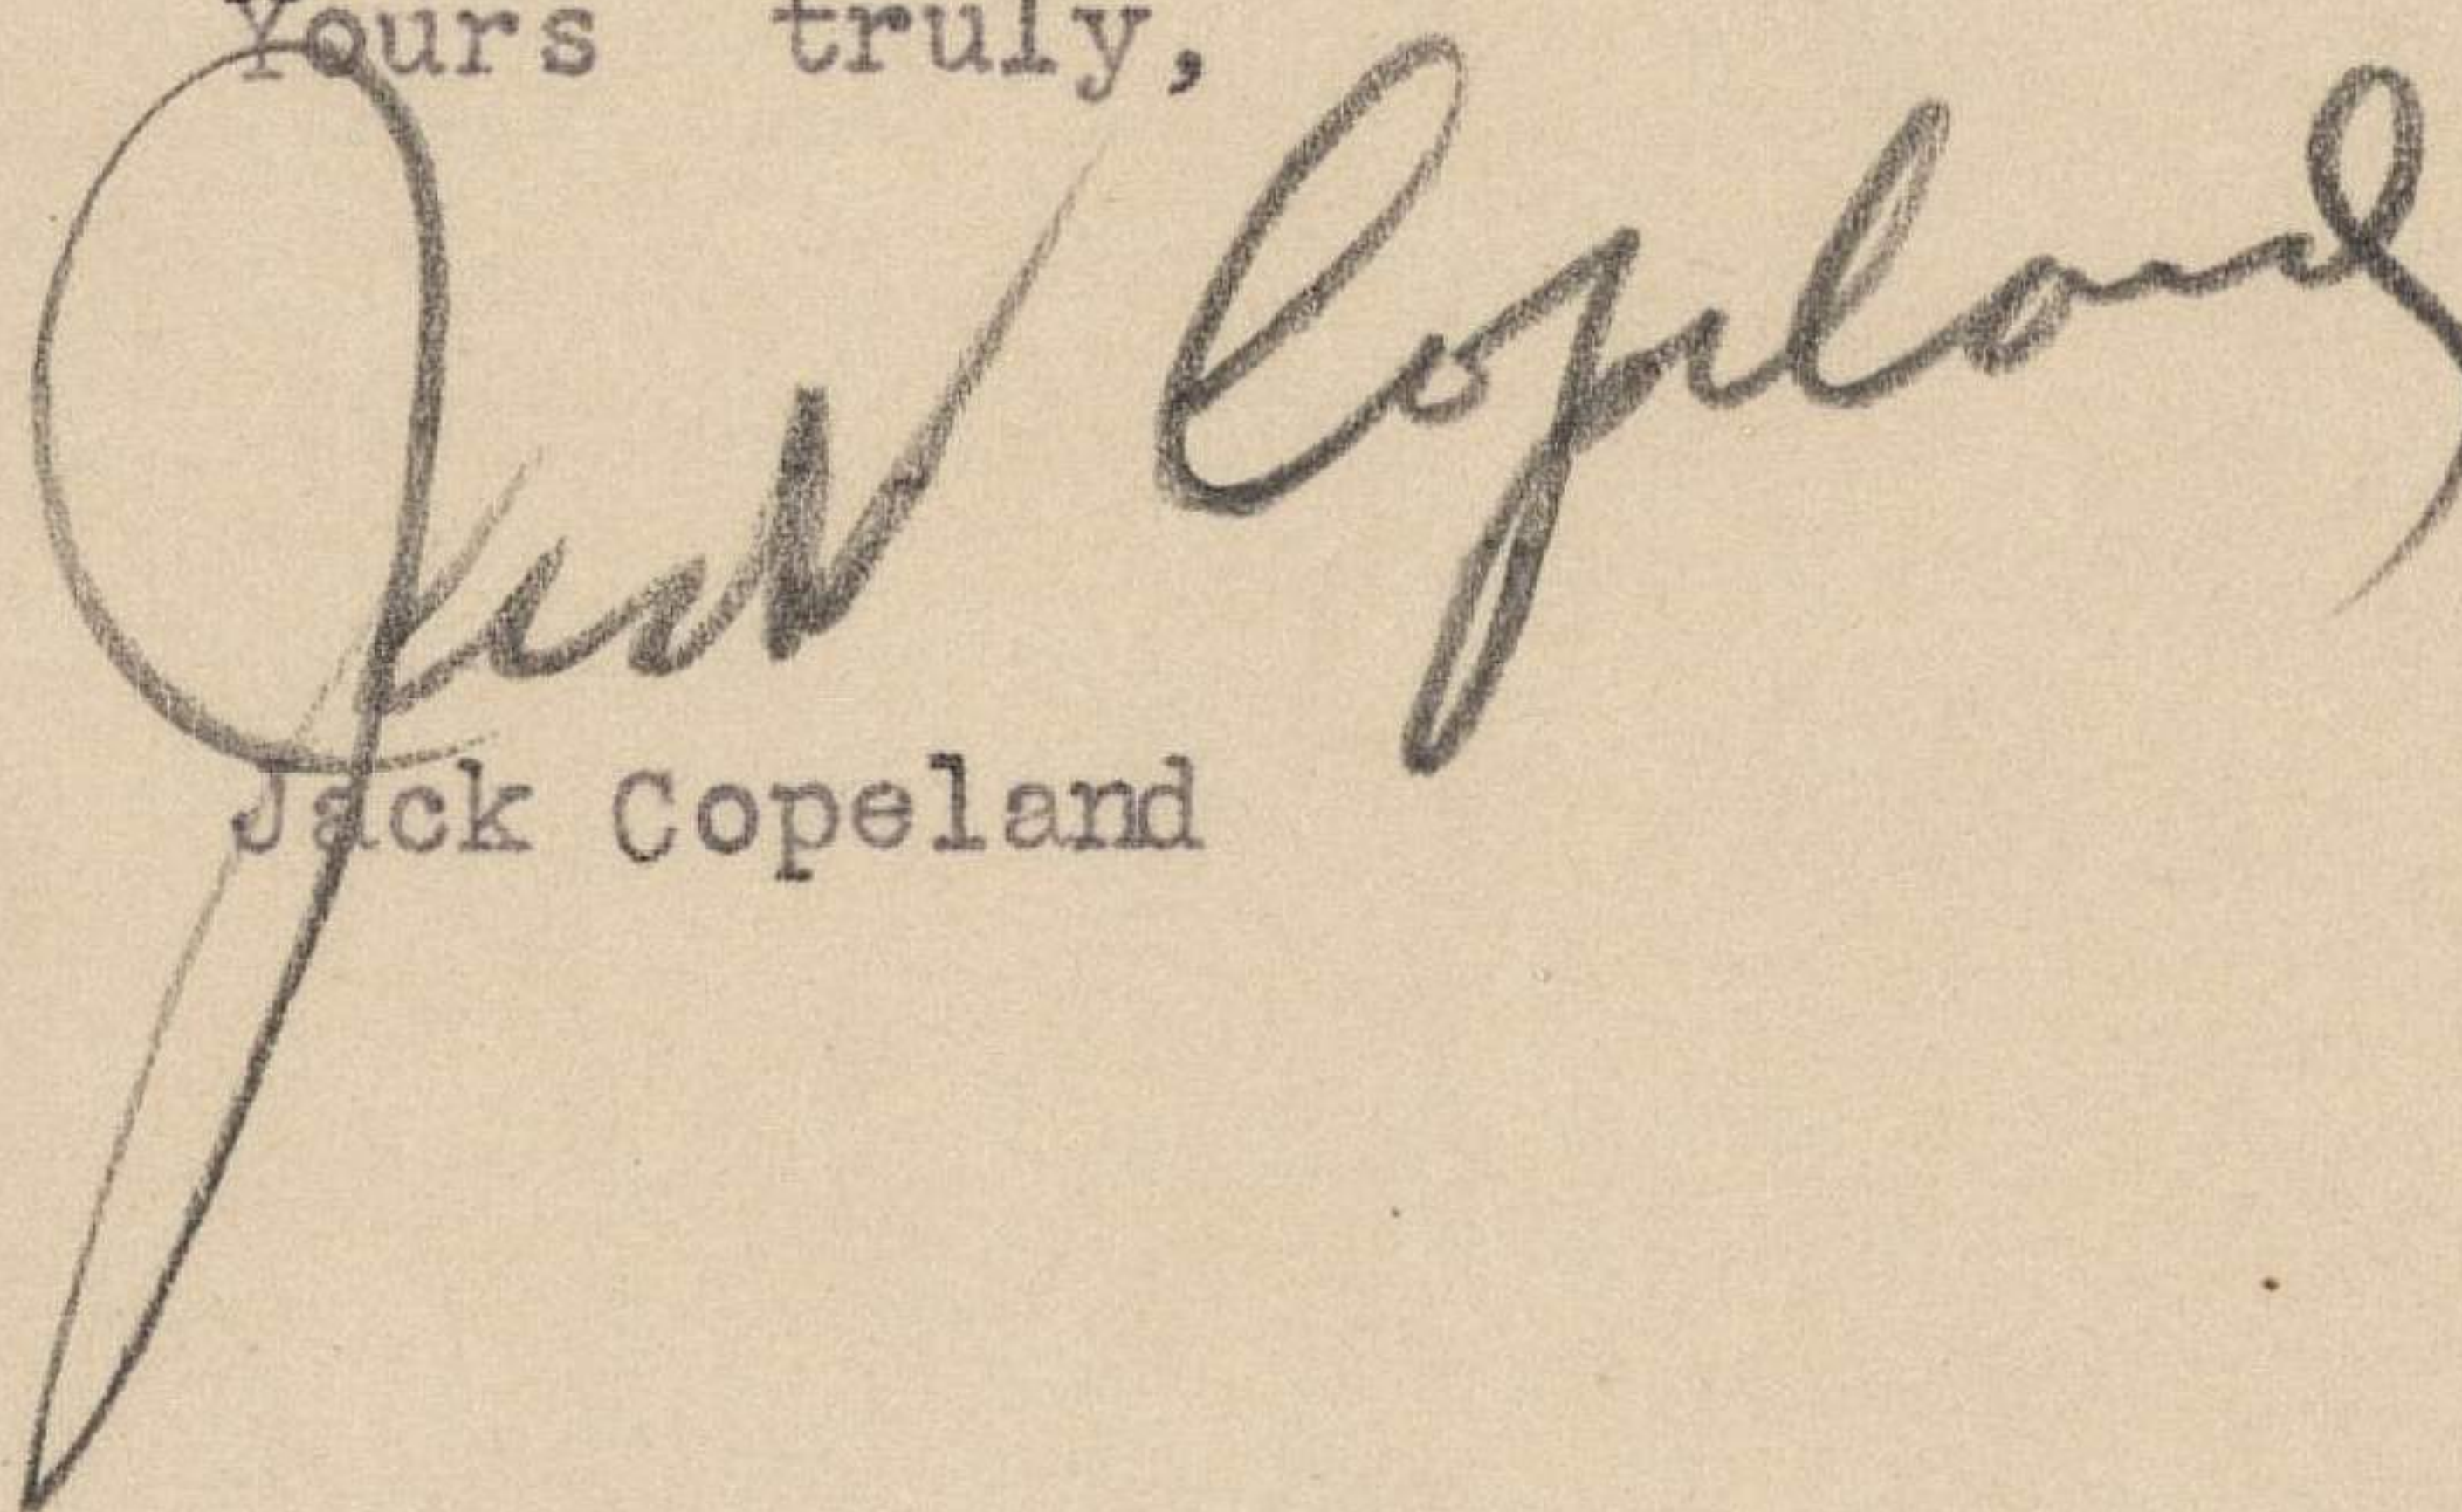

I read your analysis of the game and it is much the same as you told me the night driving from Stillwater.

I don't want you to feel that I am writing this letter merely because you lost. I know Henry Iba is a fine coach and one who can teach the fundamentals of basketball. But I do believe that your well coached team is worthy of all ---

Give my best to the boys, and I wish you more success for the remainder of the season.

With kindest personal regards, I am

Yours truly,

Dear Mr. Carlson:

Mr. Falkenstien dropped in to my office for an informal friendly chat yesterday afternoon and in the course of things discussed, we came upon the matter of itemized expense accounts together with receipts of hotel, restaurant owners and common carriers to be included with the expense accounts for team travel.

I brought up the fact that when the books were set up by Mr. Wyler and Mr. Flora that I discussed with Mr. Wyler this very thing, and I definitely recall that Mr. Wyler stated in a letter and he also told me personally, that it was his opinion that for team trips, where travel is from place to place, that he did not recommend this procedure.

Mr. Falkenstien then brought a copy of the letter that your ~~chair-~~man had written the University of Kansas, Physical Education Corporation, after the past year's audit, stating there was a lack of uniformity in the procedure of some coaches; that some of them had procured receipts and some had not; that you were recommending a uniform procedure.

Now, the only reason I am writing you is to see if you will not contact Mr. Wyler and see if I am not right in my contention that Mr. Wyler recommended that this not be done when the books were first set up. In the early years, during the time that I was Director of Athletics, I did not insist that the coaches bring in receipted bills for restaurant meals, tips, porter service, etc. Wherever it was possible we made all arrangements with railroad, pullman, etc. to have them charged and we wrote a vouchered check. Our meals were paid for and we did not get receipted bills for them.

I had never done this, but as I told Mr. Falkenstien, I am perfectly willing to do so. I had not discovered that I was doing this in any way but the approved way as I had conceived it from Mr. Wyler's set-up.

No one has asked me to write this letter and I am writing it merely to satisfy my own judgment and conscience. It is not difficult for me to get receipts for a good many of the bills that we incur.

I remember my discussing the matter of receipts with Chancellor Lindley when Mr. Wyler first set up our books, and Chancellor Lindley concurred in the opinion that if Mr. Wyler approved it this way it was entirely satisfactory. I believe if you could ask your secretary to look back in the files of Mr. Wyler's correspondence to us, at about the time you set up the books, that there is a letter from him to us to this effect.

March 3, 1941

Mr. Harold Claassen
Sports Editor, Associated Press
The Kansas City Star Building
Kansas City, Missouri

Dear Harold:

I have noted some reaction over the country to my idea of a so-called nine-man basketball game. I am writing you so that you can perhaps clear up a few points which some of the boys have lost sight of when they have written about this feature. This nine-man basketball game is a long way off in our vision of seeing the game develop.

Now I am only speaking of college basketball and not high school basketball. When I say that the 12-foot basket will come, and it will, I mean that it will come to college basketball. There is no need of a 12-foot basket in a high school because the boys' coordination has not been developed to the point that they can consistently dunk the ball into the basket. I have made this statement: In ten years or so we will have enough large auditoria over the country that a court can be laid out 110 feet in length and 60 feet in width without handicapping the seating area or playing space. This space will be right for seven-man basketball.

I have made the point that basketball crowds will only be limited by the size of the building and the playing area. Naturally as many spectators as possible desire to be along the side lines and not the end lines, and that is the reason for increasing the length of the playing floor.

I have said that as the seven-man game is developed that it is thinkable that the game court will be enlarged to 130 feet in length and 80 feet in width. Such space would provide ample playing area for nine men on a team.

I have never spoken about high school basketball teams being enlarged because that is not necessary. The normal enrollment is not so large but what the regular playing length of the court in the high school gymnasium is ample to answer the high school needs. In colleges the alumni of both teams and friends total a far greater number of spectators and followers than they do in a high school; therefore, there is greater need for a larger playing and spectator area. I was looking ahead 25 to 40 years when I mentioned the nine-man team.

The fundamentals such as dribbling, pivoting, and passing will be exactly the same. Looking into the future, it might be possible to put an additional line across the court, saying that only so many defensive men can play in certain areas with the start of the game, such as we have in football in the kickoff.

These are minor matters, Harold, but there is no reason why eighteen men, the original number that started to play under Dr. Naismith's direction, should not be possible in a game at present if the floor is large enough. With more men in the game the heart strain would not be so great on any one man as it is now; also, there would be more ball handling and in the natural process of play, no one individual would be subjected to the ordeal that they are in a five-man game.

I thought perhaps I had better drop you this line, and if you can put this on the wire at your convenience, I believe it will clarify a lot of problems in the minds of many high school coaches who feel that we are endeavoring to legislate their game into some sort of a change they do not like. The only criticism that I have of the high school game is that the elimination of the center jump has made a fire engine type of game for them instead of better ball handling and better fundamentals, and makes a hockey game out of it where good play suffers.

All the talks that I have given are made in relation to the college game; therefore, the 12-foot basket and the seven or nine-man team possibilities go for colleges only. I get many letters from high school coaches protesting against the thought of a 12-foot basket and the increase in the number of men on the team.

With all good wishes, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Director of Physical Education and Recreation

Mr. James M. Cox, Trainer
Harvard Athletic Association
Cambridge, Massachusetts

Dear Jimmie:

Pardon my delay in not answering your good letter of the 8th instant sooner.

I wish to say that we had very good success with the Safe Play Goggles designed and sold by Means and Ryan of Beloit, Wisconsin. Two of our boys used these goggles; Marvin Sollenberger from Hutchinson played our regular guard, and Charles "Hutch" Walker from Hutchinson played a utility position on our team, guard, center and forward. Both these boys made their letters and both boys played regular position.

Walker seemed to wear the glasses much more easily than Sollenberger. Sollenberger was always getting them knocked askew and they fogged up on him much more than they did on Walker. Somehow the glasses fit so closely to Sollenberger's face, due to a small bridge, that he had difficulty in keeping the vapor from them. However, Walker's bridge on his nose was more prominent and they did not seem to bother him like they did Sollenberger. Neither boy could have played well without them. The glasses aided their playing very materially.

For next year we are thinking of trying out the basketball "bumpers." A picture of the basketball "bumpers" appeared in the March or April number of Popular Science. The item in the magazine reads, "A transparent guard of unbreakable plastic, cut away to bridge the nose, completely surrounds the spectacles and insures them against being knocked off or shattered if struck. Supported by straps, the headgear is held away from the face by resilient pads resting against forehead and cheeks, and is said not to impair vision." You can get this Popular Science Magazine and look it up.

We have never gotten anything more successful than the goggles, but we are going to try the "bumpers."

No, I do not know of anyone who used the contact lenses which fit directly on the eyeball, although I remember talking to someone this winter regarding them but I am not clear as to just who it was.

I am very happy that the Cox family is pleased and prospering in their new location. I am happy for you. When you speak about spring practice I imagine you mean the football practice, do you not. Surely basketball is not going to start again so soon.

Dean Nesmith is the trainer here and has been for three years. He is doing splendidly and the boys are very fond of him. He is another boy I trained and I imagine he will be the last one. Dean is married and has a fine baby about four months old. He married a lovely K.U. girl who graduated in domestic science and the baby shows the benefits of her training and knowledge.

Elwyn Dees is doing splendidly at the University of Nebraska, and everybody is crazy about him. You know, of course, that he struck oil on his farm and he owns about three additional farms down at Wellington. He bought a lovely new home out in the country club district of Lincoln near where Major Biff Jones lives.

Tiny Moore is down at Elkhart coaching and teaching and someone told me that he makes a great deal of money on the side treating salesmen who come through and learn of Tiny's ability as a manipulator. They say he is doing splendidly and he has fine teams in football and basketball.

I am coaching baseball now and on the field I saw Dell Davidson yesterday. I will certainly remember you to Dell, Ed. Elbel and your other many friends.

Milton has been with the Standard Oil Company and after getting his first degree in business he went out in the oil fields as first-class roustabout to learn the oil business from the bottom up. He studied for three years and was promoted from the rough-necking outfit to a white-colored job as personnel manager and was moved from Russell to Ellinwood. He has a desire, however, to get his law degree because he thought it would give him a greater opportunity to get ahead. Next year he finishes his law work for an LL. B. Degree. He got leave of absence from the Standard to get his law work.

Bob is a fine student and is making a dandy record here. He has been admitted to the University of Pennsylvania Medical College and will begin his work there with the fall term. He, of course, is taking his pre-medic work here and has done a fine job.

My kindest regards to you and your good wife and your fine family.

Sincerely yours,
