

August 12, 1939.

Mr. Robert Cooper,
Washington, Kansas.

Dear Bob:

I have your letter of July 3rd, and I find that just prior to my going to St. Louis and Atlanta, where I will be until around September first, that I have failed to answer it in the rush of administrative and teaching duties of the Summer Session.

I am rather surprised that you did not write me again since you were the fellow ineligible. I know that you are not expecting me to get you eligible, because that is your own individual job. After I notified you that you were shy of some academic hours, then doubtless you knew I would have thought you would be a little hot and bothered about getting eligible, but apparently not.

I have called the Correspondence Study department and there is a course on Food and Nutrition, 3 hours, and I believe it is the only one that I know of that you can take as a freshman. You do not have enough grade points to be classified as a sophomore. I have asked them over there to write you and give you full details regarding the price of the course, and I have also asked them to specify to you that all this correspondence work must be in before you enroll in school this fall. This is not too much of a job for a fellow who wants to get the job done.

You will also remember, Bob, that no jobs are given to boys who are ineligible.

I just checked with Mrs. Hulteen and she states that she had to send you some voucher sheets to sign for your payroll. You stated that you never received your checks. It is because you failed to sign the payroll and to leave forwarding instructions at the Business Office that you failed to receive your checks.
