Lawrence, Kansas.

Dear Maurice:

Collyrium

At times I notice how badly inflamed the lids of your eyes are. I have always been troubled with that difficulty, and I find if I use Murine, or Cholarium (a Wyeth product) or Alcholol, morning and night that I reduce this irritation decidedly. I find that inflamed eyes induce a type of nervousness that is not too healthful at times. By having this solution handy and using it morning and night I feel much better.

Personally, I think the Cholarium is much the cheaper buy and just as efficient. The Alcholol has a little camphor and it is rather peppy, and Murine is too expensive for the amount you get. I buy a large bottle of Cholarium, about 68¢ I think, which comes with an eye cup, but I do not use the eye cup. I get from the drugstore a bottle with a dropper for about 5¢ - a heavy bottle with a screw top on it, and I pour this solution into one bottle for the office and one bottle for the home. I keep one in my desk and one on my dresser.

Of course, warm towels followed with cool ones will also be helpful, but it is not always convenient to use those. On dusty days you will find this solution a boon to inflamed lids.

Now you see, Maurice, I just want to keep you as handsome as you are in your youthful days.

Very sincerely yours,

Director of Physical Education,
Varsity Basketball Coach.
