

March 4, 1938.

Mr. Glenn Cunningham,
Apartment D-4,
2270 Walton Avenue,
New York City, N.Y.

Dear Glenn:

Congratulations on your wonderful achievement!

The announcement came over the radio at a most opportune time. We were playing our Big Six championship game with Missouri, and the crowd was keyed to a very high pitch. I wish you could have heard the great ovation Kansans gave to Glenn Cunningham when they heard the announcement! We are indeed proud of you, my boy.

One of my good friends, Ed Shoemaker, of Dartmouth College, I know must have gotten a great thrill out of your race. I expect to hear a lot from him about the prowess of Glenn Cunningham. Ed's father was formerly president of FCA, and retired at the age of 45 because he made so much money that he wanted to give some one else a chance. Just think of it!

Ed was a lieutenant in the Black Horse Cavalry troop at Culver last year, and next year is going to Oxford. Our son, Bobby, has been for three summers in the Black Horse Troop, and since our family has spent the summers at Lake Maxinkuskee we became greatly attached to Ed. Jane and he became very great friends. Jane is now at Stanford.

I guess the easterners have got to be converted, and by now you have converted them — and how!

Our best regards and good wishes and congratulations to you and Mrs. Cunningham, and your little daughter, Sara.

Very sincerely yours,
