Dear Fellow Faculty Member,

Last Friday I received this communication from Dean Lawson:

"Awhile ago a student, whom I know very well and in whom I have utter confidence, said that there were times when the instructors in the gym classes are careless about calling the rolls, with the result that a great many students absent themselves from some of the work. Criticism was made specifically of some of the women's classes last spring, when in the particular class mentioned, there were large numbers of absences on Friday.

"I pass this on to you for whatever it is worth. It may not be a general thing, but in the circumstances, I have to believe that a particular instructor in at least a particular class was very careless last year about checking up on the Friday attendance."

This letter is self-explanatory and I trust that our faculty will be careful in checking absences.

Sincerely,
