

Unclassed students are advanced-standing students who have either just entered the College or who have not yet done a year's satisfactory work here.

The number of Special students continues to remain quite low. The changed regulations regarding specials have evidently not opened the doors to a lot of inferior students.

The ratio of men to women is about 5 to 3.

The freshman class is about twice the size of any of the others.

The enrollment in the College on November 1 for the last ten years follows:

1926 - 2487	1931 - 2202
1927 - 2389	1932 - 1947
1928 - 2314	1933 - 1968
1929 - 2433	1934 - 2242
1930 - 2423	1935 - 2364

This year's enrollment is the highest in five years; however, it has been exceeded four times.

"There is a great danger that at times of crisis like the present we shall disappear under a welter of words used in a perfectly meaningless manner: psychology, integration, relativity, complexes, vitamins, service--you have all heard them. Certainly they appeal to the ignorant, but the really educated should be proof against them. The acid test is whether you yourself indulge in them. If you call everyone who stands to the right of you a Bourbon and everyone who stands to the left a Communist, you are contributing your bit to the confusion and deserve no better fate than to be yourself played upon by those who parade all manner of slogans and catchwords." -- President Conant, Harvard University.

FOUR COLLEGE OFFICE BEATITUDES

Blessed are the instructors who have so generously helped us during the preenrollment period, for they shall not be forgotten.

Blessed are the instructors who report final grades promptly. Verily they are the friends of this office.

Blessed are ye who do not wish to change grades once reported. Ye shall have our profound thanks.

Blessed are all instructors who are careful not to give "Incompletes," except in accordance with the regulations. Truly, they help maintain good standards of scholarship.
