

May 28, 1938.

Mr. Max Brand,
Anico Coach,
American National Insurance Co.,
Galveston, Texas.

Dear Coach Brand:

This will acknowledge receipt of your good letter of the 20th instant. I am glad that you have my book, Better Basketball, because that will enable you to understand my system.

I have coached girls several years ago, and I believe that I can understand your problem. Be sure that you write down all the things that you desire to know in breaking up a four-man zone. I believe I have the answer for you.

If you care to, you might bring your basketball shoes and an outfit. It will not be necessary, if you object to being loaded down with it, but I will wear my uniform which will make it easier to demonstrate certain plays. I would like all the coaches to at least attempt the plays.

The coaching school will be from June 13 to 18, inclusive. The tuition will be $15.00 for the two courses, Basketball, and the Treatment of Athletic Injuries. In regard to board and room, your meals will probably cost you around $5.00 a week, but of course you can eat at various eating places and you will find the meals priced very reasonably. There is no necessity in getting a room right near the University. If you have a car with you it might be preferable to get a room some blocks away. We will be glad to have some locations in mind and when you get here have someone show you around.

We are not going to have too large a school, just a small group of coaches so that all can get the most out of the teaching.

Looking forward to seeing you, I am

Sincerely yours,