

Summer Course in Athletic Coaching and Physical Education

THE TWENTY-FIRST Annual Summer Course in Athletic Coaching and Physical Education will be offered at the University of Illinois, occupying six weeks, June 18 to July 28, 1934. The Course, established in 1914, is the oldest of its type in the United States. It provides instruction in the coaching of football, basketball, and baseball, and in the principles and methods of physical education. A well-rounded list of courses is offered with sufficient time for study and consideration.

The Course is primarily for men already engaged in coaching and physical education or those who have had experience in athletics. Requirements for admission will be found on page 5.

Illinois Coaches are Instructors

Basketball and baseball will be taught by the head coaches and football by the assistant coach of these sports at Illinois. This insures first-hand instruction in the systems and techniques under which Illinois teams have made exceptional records.

The University conducts an extensive program of required physical education. Approximately 3000 students annually participate in 19 types of activity. Students in the Course receive the benefit of the valuable experience gained by members of the staff in handling such an extensive and varied program.

The Course will be under the direction of Carl L. Lundgren, assistant director of the School of Physical Education.

Milton M. Olander, first assistant varsity football coach, will give the course in football. As a player under Robert C. Zuppke for four years and as his assistant for ten seasons, Coach Olander is well acquainted with the Illinois system of football as developed by Coach Zuppke, under which Illinois football teams have won seven Big Ten championships.

Coach Olander will also have charge of a course in football practice, where practical demonstrations of all the main points of football will be given. Students themselves engage in the actual demonstration of fundamentals. They learn how to do things themselves in order that they may teach others more effectively. The football practice class naturally will appeal more to the younger coaches but many older ones say that they have profited by attendance and participation.

Craig Ruby, who will give a complete course in the theory and practice of basketball, was a star player at Missouri where he coached two teams to championships. At Illinois the record of his teams includes one tie for the championship and with the exception of one season, his teams have always finished in the first division. He has been president of the national association of basketball coaches and chairman of its committee on rules.
