

January 16, 1940.

Dean R. A. Schwegler,
School of Education,
University of Kansas.

Dear Dean Schwegler:

Referring to our conversation the other day as to what the Chicago Park District is doing, I recall that Mr. Brown at the recreation congress in Atlanta two years ago informed me of some of their work and sent me the enclosed booklet as an example of what they were doing in each sport. This is a part of their Modern Recreation Series.

This is only one of the many recreative activities that the Chicago Park District is promoting in their attempt to educate the youngsters in the correct way of playing. These slow motion pictures of big league baseball players in action, in my opinion, are perfectly correct as to form and playing efficiency, as well as terminology of the game.

After you have glanced over this booklet, will you please return it?

Very sincerely yours,

Director of Physical Education and Recreation,
Varsity Basketball Coach.

FCA:AH