Dear Doc:

It seems like years since I have written to you. I'm afraid if I would check back it would turn out to be many months so I'll start again from scratch.

My leave in January was complete in every detail except for a long talk with you. I tried to space my time so I could see everyone during the two days I was on the campus.

Unfortunately, you were sick the Friday morning I called at your office. As I told you at the same time, I planned to see you the next morning. But my plans were changed and we rushed off to Hiawatha before your office hours. Next time I'm back I'll make sure of that talk.

My time here at Roswell is nearing an end. We graduate Friday morning, the 21st. Of course, none of us know where
