My dear Miss Gerstenberger:

In order that you may have translations of the South American letters as soon as possible, I am enlisting the aid of one of our student secretaries. I have gone over the letters rather carefully with him. He is to translate the November letter in full, and summarize the contents of the others. If the wording is not perfect, will you excuse it please? And if the summaries do not prove to be entirely satisfactory, may I have another chance?

We're always glad to cooperate with you in any way, and we're interested, of course, in all things Spanish.

Sincerely,

Maud Elliott
