Dear Phog:

In a letter which I received from Mother this week, she included a clipping from the Kansas City Star concerning your son Bob. The letter also mentioned the excellent record which Milton had with you several years back. It certainly must be a tremendous satisfaction for a father to read such splendid things about his sons. Across the top of the article Mother wrote this comment about Bob. "Such a splendid boy and an A student also."

Mother mentioned in her letter that you had called at their home to give Dad a treatment in his recent difficulty. Apparently Mother thinks canned lobster was the cause of the upset as on the list of food to be avoided is that item. I guess I am truly my Father's son because I can't keep from eating things that I know are not good for me to eat. However, Mother told me that Dad was feeling much better again which, of course, makes me very happy. Being so far from Lawrence, I naturally worry when he is not feeling well.

Through the Journal World I have been following the success of your team, and naturally I am most hopeful that you win all the remaining games. Recently I saw an article in one of our papers concerning you and intended to clip it out, but I must admit that I was negligent. Our own basketball team does rather well when it stays within the limits of the North Jersey Intercollegiate League, but when we poke our necks out with New York University and Long Island University, we are considerably out of our class. This results in our being roundly beaten. However, our coach is a man in whom we have great confidence. I like his attitude, particularly concerning scholastic eligibility which somewhat parallels yours. He feels that first of all his athletes must be good students, and secondly they must be good basketball players. Somewhat following your line of thinking in asking for C averages from your players, he encourages any of his men who are having difficulty with their studies to ease up on basketball until their grades are in line. Of course, he is in an ideal spot because there is absolutely no pressure from alumni, students, or administration for him to win most of his games.

Well, this has turned out to be a rather long letter rather than a short one. Before I close, I want to say how sorry I was that I wasn't able to make a contribution to the Phi Psi Christmas fund, but you can well understand that
