

October 5, 1937.

Mr. Buren Edwards,
c/o Humble Oil Company,
Wink, Texas.

Dear Buren:

This fall I was in need of a little pin money after a very hard summer. I wrote your old coach, Mr. Clyde Littlefield, and asked him to give me your address, as I desired to see if you could not help me out a little on the personal loan that I made you when you were a freshman or sophomore at the University of Kansas.

This was from my own personal bank account, and not from any loan fund. As you will remember, I gave you a personal check. Buren, if you could send me a couple of dollars, or five, any way, I would appreciate it. I never had any idea of charging you interest, but I would greatly appreciate a small payment on the principal.

You are with a great outfit, the Humble Oil Company. I heard their broadcast the other night on the Texas-Louisiana State game. Texas had tough luck. You have got a wonderful coach in Dana Bible, and I am sure that Texas will be on the way before long. And incidentally, you have got one of the finest track coaches in America in Clyde Littlefield. I know it must have been a great pleasure for you to have worked with him down at Austin.

With every good wish, I am

Sincerely yours,

FCA:AH

Director of Physical Education.