

Norman Sanneman

December 24

The second day of our trip began at the Allerton Hotel in Chicago. We were called at 7:30 a. m. for breakfast. We caught the N. Y. Central train with about as much time to spare as the pugalist on the count of nine.

Our destination now was Ann Arbor, Mich., where we were to see the University and practice our basketball.

The train ride was filled with amusing incidents. These were card games as usual--Bill Hogben was still trying to get some music out of the box his girl gave him--John Buescher was trying to sneak away long enough to write his girl a letter--Vance Hall was engaged in a conversation with Eleanor--and our student "Rope" Engleman thumbed through the pages of his Business Law book.

Everyone was having a grand time and not forgetting we had three basketball games to win before we got back home.

Mrs. Allen has been so nice to all of us and is giving us some very welcome motherly advice so the boys and Phog won't be sick.

We arrived at the Michigan Union Building about 2:15 p. m. ready to eat, and I do mean eat--it was 2:15 p. m.

Our lodging for the night was composed of one large room with fifteen beds! It was great fun staying together and sleeping together--it was good practice in team work!!!!

We ate dinner in the college cafeteria and met the distinguished Mr. Yost, head of the Physical Ed. Department of the University of Michigan. He is a very fine gentleman and has contributed much towards the development of physical education.
