see the Normandie, a French ship in American retreat.

After dinner we were left to do whatever we wished and most of the fellows took in a show and retired.

December 28

This morning most of us went to the Radio City Music Hall, which is truly a wonderful theatre with an excellent program. We rested at the hotel in the afternoon and then watched the N. Y. U. vs. Minnesota game following ours with Fordham. I don't believe I'll say much about the game, except that maybe the city lights were a little too bright for our eyes. Tonight "Doc" took us to a fine dinner at the Hotel Lincoln where we listened to Tony Pasteur's orchestra.

December 29

Today we passed time by riding subways, riding excursion boats, and seeing movies before leaving at 4:00 o'clock for Philadelphia. Upon arriving we immediately went to the Swarthmore field house for a brief work-out and then to Strath Haven Inn, where we will stay for the next two evenings. We all listened to the President's speech this evening before going to bed.

We arose fairly early this morning and took the train into Philadelphia where we called on Bob Reed, the managing editor of the Country Gentleman magazine, and visited the Shrine of Free Government, Independence Hall. In the afternoon we went back to the Inn and prepared for the game in the evening. The fellows played good and fought hard tonight, but it seemed as though the odds were against them, because we were beaten again. We saw several K. U. alumni after the game and then we had a feed before retiring.
