

Solly

January 2

Today was spent at the Hotel Allerton entirely. We have seen a lot of sights in the past week and have paid too little attention to basketball play. It's time that we are getting seriously minded for our Big Six battles.

Tonight we had a close game with Loyola, but we managed to win by one point. Big John Kline threw a body block on the score keepers table that gave the whole crowd a thrill.

After the game John Kline's cousin who is a pilot on the United Air Lines showed Engleman, John, and I a few of the high spots of Chicago and also one of the most delicious steaks that I ever hope to eat.

January 3

After breakfast we made our traditional grand rush for the railroad station just in time to board the streamliner for good old Kansas