

T. P. Hunter

We left for Philadelphia at 4:00 o'clock and arrived about 6:30. We went to the Swarthmore Field House and had a short practice.

While dressing after practice we found out that we had to be at the Strath Haven Inn before 8:00 or we wouldn't be able to get our dinner.

After dinner we listened to Mr. Roosevelt's Fireside Chat and went to our quiet cozy quarters.

December 30

In the morning we went from our quiet little retreat at Swarthmore to the traditional old city of Philadelphia. Philadelphia is a large city and we had to do considerable walking in order to see much of the town. This we did.

First, we went to the Curtiss Publishing Co. Building to see Mr. Bob Reed, editor in chief of the Country Gentleman magazine.

Next, we went to Independence Hall, which was just across the street from the Curtiss Building. Here we saw the Liberty Bell, and saw much more actual history than I learned in school.

After lunch we went back to Strath Haven Inn to rest for the game with Temple that night. We were unfortunate enough to lose this ball game, too.

December 31

We left Philadelphia for Washington. Here we visited the F. B. I. Building and gave it a close inspection from shooting gallery in the basement to the technical laboratories in the upper part of the building.
