Dear Coach Allen:

I have your letter of November 18 and I appreciate the fact that you are busy and understand perfectly why you cannot always comply with the many requests that come to you. If you can get time to prepare something for my January issue, I will use it at that time. I should receive it by December 20.

I realize that I shouldn't call on you like this, but you are so popular down here and an article by you adds so much to our magazine, I just can't resist being a little bold. If my publication continues to grow and gather support it won't be long until I will be able to pay you something for your trouble.

With best regards I am,

Your very sincere friend,
