

Baseball gave unlimited power to Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis and he built confidence in a sport that had received a knock-out by the gamblers.

Certainly this is a job with dignity that could attract a Supreme

General Douglas MacArthur or Court justice or a personality the type of J. Edgar Hoover. Carte Blanche → This High Commissioner should have a sympathy and a fondness for and a belief in the educational value of college sports rightly conducted.
Carte Blanche authority should be given this man to devise a workable system whereby all of the better colleges of America could be brought in to a scheme that would prove a mighty force in striking out against gambling, illegal subsidizing and rank profession-and at the same time restoring the integrity of college sports and their alism in college sport. The salary and tenure for such a man should be rightly sixty to seventy-commensurate with that of Judge Landis five thousand dollars, and the tenure should be for life.

as some contend,
Instead of divorcing this man from college sports, he would be very intimately associated with the colleges because it would be from the authority
He must be an integral part. of the presidents that this man would derive his power. The salary of $75,000

The salary would be no great obstacle because each school would pay its share according to the student population. The small college of 350 would pay its proportionate part of the salary as would a university with 20,000 enrolled.

Students enrolled

This High Commissioner should of necessity be legally trained for the purpose of writing the constitution and by-laws for the conferences and the colleges of America under which they would operate. The odium on college athletics would be lifted because there would be a confidence in the adminis-