CORRESPONDENCE

Dear Educators:

Four days out of New York we passed the Bahamas today. The worst of the day was the catapaulting of our three planes. The first four for me were some the hardest because we have been standing 4-hour watches in the extremely hot engine rooms diagnosing their functions. Most of the watches have been at night and that is just not sleep, but that is over now. This has been the first really free time I have had - Now what a relief to think of a full night of sleep. I'm looking for a national championship from the B.B. team this year - Don't let me down. Curvin
