Dear Educators:

Four days out of New York we passed the Bahamas today. The event of the day was the catapulting of our three planes. The first four days for me will prove the hardest because we have been standing 4-hour watches in the extremely hot engine rooms their functions. Most of the watches have been at night and that is just lost sleep, but that is over now. This has been the first really free time I have had. Wow what a relief to think of a full night of sleep. I'm looking for a National championship from the B.B. team this year - Don't let me down.
