Big Six Teams In Nation-Wide Jaunts For Xmas

BY CARL LUNDQUIST

Untied Press Staff Correspondent

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 12. —(UP)—Five of the Big Six conference basketball teams will indulge in intersectional jaunts that will carry them from coast to coast before their league schedules begin this year, but the sixth, the Missouri Tigers, will be a bunch of "stay at homes."

While their league brothers from Nebraska are basking in California's sunshine and while Kansas, Oklahoma, Iowa State and Kansas State engage in junkets to the east, Missouri's boys are going to stick to an intra-state schedule which includes games with Westminster, Washington, St. Louis University and Springfield Teachers.

Meet Indians in Two Sports

Incidentally, Nebraska's basket-eers are going to play on the west coast at the same time that the Cornhusker football champions of the Big Six are meeting Stanford in the Rose Bowl. Even more of a co-incidence is the fact that one of Nebraska's basketball opponents will be Stanford. The basketball schedules were made out long before the Husker football team was invited to the Rose Bowl, however, so Coach Harold Brown of the basketball five figures it simply as a "lucky happenstance." The Huskers start their basketball swing on the day after Christmas at Berkeley, playing California. On the next night, Dec. 27, they play Stanford at Palo Alto, then go north to meet Oregon State at Corvallis on Dec. 30. This will give them plenty of time to get back down to Pasadena by New Year's Day.

Oklahoma, Kansas and Kansas State all will go on eastern junkets which will take them to the Atlantic coast.

Jayhawkers in Garden

The Jayhawkers will play "one night stands" at New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, starting at Madison Square Garden on Dec. 28 when they play the Fordham Rams.

Big Gordon Nicholas, Iowa State's senior co-captain and center who has rolled in 29 points in the Cyclones' first three games this year.

On Dec. 30 they move over to Philadelphia to meet Temple and finish the tour at Chicago on January 3 against Loyola.

Kansas State plays a four game eastern series, starting Dec. 27 at Villanova, Pa., against Villanova, On the next night, the Staters play George Washington at Washington, D.C., and on Dec. 30 meet Seton Hall College at South Orange, N.J., finishing up at Urbana, Ill., on Jan. 2 against the University of Illinois.
