

we felt that you were the only person fit to mold George into the finished product. It has seemed all along tho that George was not conforming and we have felt so badly about it. And I think Hardy and I know athletics well enough to know that training must be kept. Your treatment of George has been fair and square and in line with athletic ethics. A boy that breaks training does not deserve to play full time in any game, and he may as well find out that the thing is going to play out pretty much that way in life.

But Dr. Allen I saw George this afternoon. I have never seen anyone so whipped. He actually cried. I had felt badly about him and thought he only got what he deserved but the thing has crushed him. He
