

Now, Joe, I am destroying your letter because you made a reference to two gentlemen that I did not want to leave in my files. I am just telling you on good advice - do not write things about people that might get back to them. I am sure that this never would through this source, but to protect you I am destroying the letter.

Mrs. Allen and Jane and Eleanor have been in New York for two or three weeks, and are now at Louisville, Kentucky, visiting Mary and her three children. Bobby is through summer school, made a B in chemistry, and tomorrow morning Bob and I will drive down to Louisville for a few days.

With all good wishes, and assuring you that I am your friend,
I am

Sincerely yours,
