Dear Doc:

Events have been happening fast and furious the last several days and if all goes well I should be a first class civilian very soon. Under the Navy's discharge system I have enough points to get out and I'm in that process at the present of being discharged. Of course it may not be as fast as I hope it will but it won't be long if they unravel the red tape.

Soon I expect to be home with the family and that's going to be a great day. When I get that discharge and things settle down I'd like to make an appointment to see you for some advice and find out what has been going to transpire in the future. This may seem odd possibly but many of us who have been out have lost all contacts and what is going on at home.

Naturally, I expect to go to work somewhere and I have some things I'd like to talk over with you and get your advice. You know by now, from the past that for advice I have always turned to you because of conditions at home not being too reliable. I guess you are a marked man and I'm asking an adoption but I think you understand the particulars.
