THE GAME OF BASKETBALL was invented deliberately to furnish a vigorous, interesting, indoor game for the winter months. It was devised by James A. Naismith, an instructor in the Y.M.C.A. College at Springfield, Mass., and was first played in December, 1891. Ordinary gymnastics palled on the 18 candidates for Y.M.C.A. secretarial training, so Dr. Luther Gulick, head of the school, directed Naismith to provide a suitable game for the active youths.

Young Naismith analyzed games, and found that carrying or throwing a ball was among the fundamentals. He recalled his boyhood game of duck-on-the-rock, and that the tossed rock was more accurate, even though it did not drive the "duck" as did the hurled rock. He decided to toss the ball, in his new game. Since a goal on the floor would be too easy to defend, he decided on the elevated goal; because the janitor had a couple peach baskets but no boxes, the baskets were used; because the gallery railing of the gym was 10 feet from the floor, that became the established height. A larger ball could be more easily handled than a small one, so the soccer ball was adopted.

Running with the ball involved too much danger to the player trying to stop the ball carrier, so he determined to let the other players run, and require the man with the ball to dispose of it.

There were 18 in the class, so the first teams were of nine men each, later cut to seven, and still later to the present five.

The game "caught on" immediately. It was described in the Y.M.C.A. College papers, and was soon tried by Y.M.C.A.'s elsewhere. New York City had games early in 1892.

The young secretaries, going to far parts of the country and to foreign lands, carried the game with them. Duncan Patton, "Y" graduate, took the game to India in 1894; Emil Thies, to France in 1895; Ishakawa, to Japan in 1900. American soldiers played it during the Boxer rebellion, and the Philippine insurrection. C. Harek, another "Y" man, introduced it into Persia in 1901.

Yale, Cornell, and Chicago had teams in 1893-5. Basketball was played in the Missouri Valley as early as 1899 the year after Dr. Naismith had come to the University of Kansas as instructor in physical education, and director of chapel exercises.

There are now no authentic figures as to the number of persons playing the game, but John Griffith, Big Ten commissioner, is authority for the statement that 96 per cent of the high schools and colleges of America have basketball teams.

THE INVENTOR OF THE GAME

DR. JAMES NAISMITH, inventor of the game of basketball, has been a member of the faculty of the University of Kansas since 1898, coming to this institution shortly after he had completed a medical course at Denver University. For the first few years he combined duties of chapel leader with those of instruction in physical education. Since 1906, he has been professor of physical education, and has been at the University continuously except a few months as chaplain with the Twentieth Kansas on the Mexican border, and a little short of two years with the Y.M.C.A. in France during the World War.

Dr. Naismith attended the grade school at Almonte, Canada, his birthplace, and later attended the high school a few miles away. His parents died when he was 8 years old, and he was brought up in the home of an uncle. Midway in his high school career he became disgusted with the type of companion he found himself with, so went to work on his uncle's farm in summers, and in the woodlot in winters.

Then came a resolve to be a minister, and he re-entered high school, where he was returned to the beginning class. Nevertheless, he completed the course in two years and entered McGill University. There he joined in sports of his classmates, rising at 6 for football practice, since some of the other students were busy until nightfall. He devised a canton flannel headgear to protect his ears—a few years later modern leather headgear, following much the same pattern appeared.

While taking his seminary course at McGill, an incident occurred that turned Naismith's career. One day in football practice something went wrong, and the guard next him began swearing loudly. Suddenly he stopped, and turned to Naismith.

"I beg your pardon, Jim. I didn't notice you were there," he said.

"I hadn't paid particular attention," says Dr. Naismith, "for I had heard more fluent swearing than that in the lumber camps of Canada. It set me thinking about this matter of personal influence, and I talked about it with the Y.M.C.A. secretary."

He told me of the Y.M.C.A. college, and I was all for stopping my ministerial career right then, and going to that college. However, I was dissuaded, and received my ministerial degree, but have never held a pastorate."

Dr. Naismith and Alonzo Stagg entered Springfield College together, and by reason of excellent preparation, both finished the work in a year. Naismith was retained for two years in the College staff, and it was during this period that he invented the game of basketball.

When he had entered McGill he had disregarded gymnasium work, relying on his farm-boy physique, but took to heart the warning of a couple of upper classmen. Later, when the gym instructor died unexpectedly, Naismith succeeded to the job, and when he went to medical school in Denver, again found a gymnasium position that paid the way.

In the summer of 1898, Chancellor Snow of the University of Kansas was seeking a man who could combine the duties of instructor in physical education and of chapel leader. He chanced to tell his quest to Stagg, who recalled his Y. M. College schoolmate, and he recommended Naismith. The chapel leading ceased after a few years, but the interest in basketball continued.

A team was soon organized at the University, and that very winter games were played with nearby teams. The game had been introduced at the University of Iowa by a Y. secretary, so it was easy to interest mid-west colleges in the sport, and it became one of the recognized sports as soon as the old Missouri Valley conference was formed.

Dr. Naismith has made many studies of the effects of the game on the player, and has taken an active interest in its improvement. He is "honorary chairman for life" of the National Rules Committee for the United States and Canada.

In February, 1936, basketball teams throughout the nation observed "National Naismith night," at which contributions were made to send Dr. and Mrs. Naismith to the Olympic games.

DR. FORREST C. ALLEN

Director of Athletics and Basketball Coach, University of Kansas
Director American Olympic Basketball, 1936

TWENTY conference championships in 26 years of basketball coaching, with additional highly successful seasons for two other sports, is the record established by Dr. Forrest C. Allen, director of athletics at the University of Kansas, Lawrence, and basketball coach all that time, and two years in his student days. He is the dean of basketball coaches in the United States, and has been selected as director of the American basketball team entered in the Olympic games at Berlin.

Dr. Allen was playing basketball with the Kansas City Athletic Club in 1905 when it won three games straight from the Buffalo Germans, then touring the country as "world's champions." In a game at Independence, Mo., in 1903, Dr. Allen first met Dr. James Naismith, inventor of the game of basketball, and then coach at the University of Kansas. The next year Allen entered the University, and in the season of 1908 was coaching the Kansas team, which finished the season as champion, with 7 games won and 2 lost.

The next year he coached to another championship, 10 to 2, and at the same time was coaching the Haskell Indian "National Aboriginal" team, which won 19 of 24 games, and travelled 5000 miles. He likewise coached Baker University, 20 miles away, to a successful season.

He then entered medical school, studying especially how to guard against, and to relieve athletic injuries, and in the fall of 1912 became coach of all sports at Missouri State Teachers College at Warrensburg. His football, basketball, and baseball teams that winter completed the seasons undefeated, and the basketball championship started a seven-year series of conference championships.

In the fall of 1919 he became director of athletics at the University of Kansas, and before the basketball season was over was coaching that sport. In the 1920 and 1921 seasons, Missouri won the championships, but in 1922 Dr. Allen pressed the Tigers to a tie, each having lost only to the other in the 16-game schedule.

The remaining six seasons of the old Missouri Valley Conference yielded Kansas five championships, the one in 1923 being a clean sweep of the 16-game schedule. This season was remarkable, also, as being in the midst of a winning run of 34 consecutive conference games, ended, finally, by Oklahoma, which in 1928 moved into championship position. Before the formation of the present Big Six, there were some years as many as nine opponents, in double roundrobin series, which necessitated a schedule of 18 conference games.

Basketball Records

Oklahoma carried over its winning way into the Big Six conference, and held the leadership in 1929; Missouri won the next year; then Kansas, under Dr. Allen cleaned the next four. The 1935 season with a schedule of 12 games for some and 16 for others of the Big Six, went to Iowa State, coached by Louis Menze, a pupil of Dr. Allen's at Warrensburg. Iowa State had won 10 of 12 games, and Kansas only 12 of 16. In 1936, Kansas won all 10 conference and eight non-conference games.

Other pupils of Dr. Allen who have achieved fame as basketball coaches are Arthur (Dutch) Lonborg at Northwestern; Adolph Rupp, University of Kentucky; John Bunn, Stanford University; and Forrest (Frosty) Cox, at the University of Colorado.

Dr. Allen originated the zone elastic band, five-man defense system, which found much favor with basketball coaches. By playing the ball instead of the man, the original theory of basketball is followed, and the players are not worn down as in the man-to-man defense.

Dr. Allen has been a great student of the principles of basketball, and frequently, by agreement with opponents, tries out under playing conditions suggested modifications of the rules. He has written extensively for sports periodicals, and in 1924 published his "Basketball Bible," which had a circulation of 14,000.

Dr. Allen was one of the organizers, and for two years president of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, and for ten years has been a member of the National Basketball Rules Body. He is chairman of the Olympic Committee in both of these organizations, and was largely instrumental in obtaining for basketball recognition as a contest sport for the 1936 Olympics at Berlin.

The largest crowd ever to witness Kansas basketball team was at St. Louis in 1925 when 8000 persons watched the Jayhawkers nose out Washington University 22 to 19 in the Missouri Valley championship game.

THE GREATEST COLLEGE YELL IN AMERICA

What justly may be termed the most famous college yell in America is the Rock Chalk, Jayhawk yell of the University of Kansas. The agitating call of the Rock Chalk has encircled the globe, and has been answered in all parts of the world, wherever Kansans meet.

In the spring of 1898, Company H of the Twentieth Kansas Infantry, composed largely of former students and graduates of the University of Kansas, introduced the Rock Chalk yell to the United States Volunteers who were stationed at San Francisco. At this particular time the yell was used at football games between the team of the Twenties Kansas and the teams of the University of California and Leland Stanford.

Later in the Philippines the stirring tones of "Rock-Chalk-Jayhawk-K. U." became the battle cry of the soldiers in the trenches.

During the World War the Jayhawk cheer was heard on the battle fields of France as well as at various athletic contests and gatherings of American soldiers in Europe. Althought six thousand miles from home, the men of the 137th Infantry of the Thirty-fifth Division observed Kansas Day on Jan. 29, 1919. As reported by the "Jayhawk News," unofficial organ of the 137th Infantry, a large meeting was held at Sampigny, France, at which W. Y. Morgan, former lieutenant-governor of Kansas, presided. The Rock Chalk yell opened and closed the meeting.

During athletic meets both at Commercy Field, Commercy, France, and the Inter-Allied Games at Paris, participants representing the United States and Kansas were cheered to victory by the immortal "Rock-Chalk-Jayhawk-K. U." During the Olympics at Antwerp, the nobility assembled there requested that a typical American college yell be given. This group of athletes gathered from every quarter of the United States decided that the honor should go to the University of Kansas with its Rock Chalk, Jayhawk yell.

Strangely enough, the inspiring cry, which now kindles fire in the hearts of Kansas athletes, originally was in no way associated with athletics. In fact, athletic teams were not organized at Kansas until 1890, four years after the advent of the Rock Chalk yell. On May 21, 1886, E. H. S. Bailey, professor of chemistry, submitted the yell to the Science Club, which immediately adopted it.

As yelled by the Science Club, before being taken over for general university use in 1887, the "Rock Chalk," was "Rah, Rah! Jayhawk, K.U!" given three times with a quick staccato accent. But soon it was suggested that "Rock Chalk" might well be substituted for "Rah, Rah." Rock Chalk, it was observed, rhymed with Jayhawk and was also symbolic of the chalk strata of the Cretaceous geological period which covers much of Kansas and of which there are several outcroppings on Mount Oread, the campus of the University of Kansas.

By 1899 constant usage of the yell had developed a new technique. In lieu of the staccato accent, the first three lines (which then had been changed to two) were given more slowly and drawn out into the present day "Rock-Chalk-Jayhawk-K.U."

But even then the "K.U." at the end was given quickly. It was not until about 1905 that the students and fans began elongating the "K" and the "U," adding the intonation of three steps down the scale on the "U." To the two elongated lines were added three short staccato lines, thus putting the final touches to what today is the most famous yell in America.

Thus we have:

ROCK CHALK, JAYHAWK, K.U.

ROCK CHALK, JAYHAWK, K.U.

ROCK CHALK! JAYHAWK! K.U!

ROCK CHALK! JAYHAWK! K.U!

ROCK CHALK! JAYHAWK! K.U!

*Basketball RecordsInteresting Kansas Basketball Facts

Tommy Johnson made 18 out of 20 free throw attempts in the Washburn game of 1909. Kansas won 46 to 17.

In the Kansas-Wyandotte A.C. game at Kansas City in 1906, Cole, Wyandotte guard, while not contributing a point to his team's total, made 17 personal fouls. Kansas won 40 to 10.

Highest individual opponent score was made by Bud Browning in 1935 when he scored 11 field goals and 5 free throws for a total of 27 points. Kansas won the game played at Norman 47 to 42.

In the dedicatory game of Robinson gymnasium, Kansas defeated Ottawa 66 to 22, and ran up the largest Kansas lead before the opponent scored, tallying 31 points before Ottawa found the basket range. Lead—31 to 0.

In a game with Missouri at Columbia in 1909, seven Kansas players took part in the game, each had one and only one field goal, and each had a single free throw, and the team committed 7 personal fouls. Missouri won 31 to 21.

"Fog" Allen scored 10 field goals and 6 free throws for a total of 26 points in leading Kansas to 60 to 14 victory over Emporia State Normal in 1906. This was the highest individual score ever made by a Kansas player, in one game.

V. "Shorty" Long made 22 out of 27 free throw attempts in the Kansas-K.C.A.C. game in 1911. K.C.A.C. won 41 to 40. Long also made 137 points from free throws during the season, making all but one of the free throws made by the Kansas team during the year.

The longest period without either Kansas or opponent scoring a single point was the game with Nebraska at Lincoln in 1909. Neither team scored during the first 13 minutes of play (almost one-third of game) and Nebraska led 8 to 2 at the half. Kansas finally won the game 18 to 13.

NOTE—The foregoing facts and a vast amount of checking of scores was done for this booklet by Delmer Curry, a student in the department of journalism.
