Dear Doc:

I have a brother, Mansfield, who has attended George Washington University one year and then dropped out of school for a year or so. He is six feet tall and weighs about 170 pounds and would be a pretty good basketball prospect for some college.

He is a fast floor man, can shoot with either hand, good on defense, and is a fair shot. He also plays baseball and if he puts on enough weight might be eligible for football. He played on the freshman basketball team as a regular forward. He does not want to go to Pittsburg because he would be known as Chuck's brother.

His average grades in high school were "C" and were about the same in college. He is about 21 years of age and has been out of school long enough to become serious about his college work. I believe that Mansfield could be developed into a good student as well as a good player.

If you would be interested I would appreciate your dropping me a line at your convenience. Thank you in advance for any consideration you might give him.

Very truly yours,

Chuck Hyatt
