My dear Mr. Allen,

I have just returned home after waiting for some three hours for a ticket to the Aggie game. Not only was I turned away but so were hundreds of others. The disgusting part of the situation was not that we didn't get tickets, but because many of those who did, came back by us sticking the tickets in our face begging for a profitable bid. Something should be done, if possible about this undemocratic practice.

While I was in service this same thing happened to me at Madison Square, and it isn't the first time it has happened here.

I'm a firm believer in collegiate athletics. Before I entered the service and since I have returned, I have supported all college athletics, particularly the Big Six, that were within my financial power. It is my hope
