Dear Doc,

I really have the job on this ship - it's about the softest one on it. Only time I'm really busy at all is when we are loading or unloading. The rest of the time I do odds & ends and take it easy. They censor pretty closely here so I can't say anything about what we've done or are doing now. However, on a ship - you can't blame them for censoring closely - it's necessary for safety.

This life with the Navy is a pretty soft living after being with the 6th. Eating well, a bunk to sleep in, a shower to help clean - it's swell. I'm the only Marine aboard - in the ship's company - so I have my hands full keeping the boys at bay. However, with the corps' record - it's no trouble. The Navy boys are a swell gang. Give your wife and family my best.

Say hello to Bill!
