Mr. Earl Jones,
500 West 72nd Street,
Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Earl:

You were right, as you always are. That invoice did arrive and I sent them a check pronto. I was more than well pleased with the business response and promptness that I received from you and your firm. And too, the shoes were highly satisfactory to my daughter, and in addition, the old man had enough money to pay for them, which makes 100% all around on this proposition. Now that side of the ledger is closed.

The question that you asked about my golf game raises another point. Last spring when that Irishman named O'Donohue, representing your firm, came by I ordered some Spalding basketballs of the stitched type, and then out of the blue he angled up to me and whispered something like this - "Some time you may receive some golf balls" - or something to that effect.

My hearing is not highly acute, and since that incident I have been wondering if I misunderstood him and he said "highball". Neither have arrived, and I am again writing a Spalding representative to see if my hearing was poor.

That is how my golf game is.

Sincerely yours,

Director of Physical Education,
Varsity Basketball Coach.
