Dear Earl:

The night before the Nebraska game which was on February 10, every ticket was sold for the Oklahoma game to be played on March 7. I ask you-- do you think Kansas needs a field house?

I do not know whether Mr. Falkenstein will have any tickets that might be turned back to him, but there will be standing room. However, I will ask him to write you and do the very best he can.

I would suggest that you bring a folding camp stool that you might be able to jam into some nook or cranny. This will be all right for you men who are virile and strong. You can stand the ordeal, but for the women folks, I don't advise it!

Sincerely yours,
