Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Clarence:

It was mighty nice of you to write me as you did on August 25 calling attention to Uni-Goal. I am not worried about this proposition, although it may cause some suit on the patent right. But I am in favor of letting every fellow do the best he can for himself, and if they have a better product than we have, then that is all right. I'll tell you about it when I have a chance to visit with you.

Clarence, nothing would give me more pleasure than to visit you in your home and see your lovely children. I know what a fine father you are, and I know you must have a wonderful family. You remember that I met your lovely wife some few years ago. I want to take advantage of your invitation at some time in the near future.

This seven-year-old youngster of yours is typically a McGuire. I remember what a battler you were for Kansas, and the fact that he has only broken his arm twice makes me believe he has at least half as much energy as his father!

With all good wishes to you and yours, I am

Very sincerely yours,

Director of Physical Education and Recreation,
Varsity Basketball Coach.
