

June 13, 1938.

Lowe & Campbell Athletic Goods Co.,
1509 Baltimore Avenue,
Kansas City, Missouri.

Gentlemen:

Sidney Linscott, Jr., of Erie, Kansas, a student of the University of Kansas, desires that I order a knee guard for him.

Last summer while riding a motorcycle, he fell and fractured his left knee. He is entering the R.O.T.C. detachment of the University of Kansas stationed at Fort Leavenworth. He desires a sponge rubber knee guard with a snap buckle elastic band that will fit above and below the knee, something that he can wear under his long trousers while at the camp, and at the same time protect this patella (knee cap) from injury should he fall upon it. Something like the Kelley Knee Pad, only of sponge rubber but smaller and closer fitting, will be quite satisfactory. You had better cover the sponge rubber with chamois, both sides.

Please send the knee guard to Sidney Linscott, Jr., together with the bill, as he will pay for same. His father is a banker at Erie, Kansas.

Sincerely yours,

Director of Physical Education,
Varsity Basketball Coach.

FCA:AH