Dear Keedy:

I will be happy to receive the coat to go with the gray outfit. We do need something like this to complete the setup. A knitted gray shirt was sent with the other outfit. I did not ask Arno to send the shirt, but I imagine he thought I wanted an all gray outfit.

I am planning on using a white shirt. I want to keep the cost of the coat down as much as possible, because I am planning on an emblem on the coat and this will be additional. So I am endeavoring to get as much quality as possible for the small price.

I thought of a cotton coat with fleece lining, which should not be any more expensive than a sweat garment with a cut-away neck, only I wanted it as a coat rather than the closed front.

Regarding the trousers, I am very sure that the order is in the bag because, as I told you, the faculty group all went for your garment, and the faculty will, of course, have quite a bit of weight in advising the students.

Things are progressing slowly, yet there is progress.

I was happy to have your letter. You can be assured always of my cooperation.

Very sincerely yours,
