Mr. Sidney S. Linscott,
Home State Bank,
Erie, Kansas.

Dear Swede:

Your son Sidney, Jr., came in this morning. I had previously checked up with Mr. Earl Falkenstien to see that the tickets were available for him. It is very generous of you to take care of these boys. It certainly will give them a thrill, I am sure, and of course it will be a fine advertisement for the University of Kansas and the HomeState Bank.

We had a tough game at Columbia. Missouri has a much better ball team than I thought they had, or maybe they played better against us as they never leave off any of the old Tiger fight when they meet the Jayhawkers.

I told Sidney, Jr., to have you slip up any morning, but you had better let me know when you are coming. If you come Sunday it had better be right after lunch, because I have a Sunday School class Sunday morning.

Your physician is right. I am quite sure there is no necessity of an x-ray. I am wondering if you are wearing a sacro-iliac belt. We often make these from Ford inner tubes, and they hold the old back up in good shape so you can play golf and go about your business with much less pain than usual. Let me know how you are getting along and when you are coming up.

Also let me know what you did to the kids with that number 5 iron and the putter.

Fraternally yours,

Director of Physical Education,
Varsity Basketball Coach.
