Dear Dr. Allen,

With the school year coming to a close, I have decided to do a little correspondence before my friends get too far away for summer duties and before my summer life begins.

With another year of school teaching added to my career, I can easily say my experience here has been most enjoyable. Although I feel that I haven't accomplished a lot in my classes under the present conditions at Lakeview, I have hopes for the future and am beginning to see light. I may be building air-castles in vain but unless my style is cramped too much, I know I can do worthwhile things next year.

All we need is a little organization - a thing that has been far in the background at Lakeview here - to face as far as Physical Education is concerned.

With a new fellow-worker for next year, who is interested in P.E. instead of coaching + a salary, I am looking forward to an outstanding program within a year or two. I believe we can put Physical Education in its place here and have it respected, instead of being looked upon as being just "one of those things" necessary for graduation. I hope it will mean more to students than just attending another class.

Of course in the meantime, I'm still interested in getting into a college or University. I've signed my contract with my $200 raise with the understanding that it can be cancelled if opportunity knocks at my door.

Antioch College hired a girl from Eric College who had had experience in teaching on a college level. As I had expected, someone always
