

posed agreement which was agreed to in principle, and it was voted to present it to the members at the next Convention, subject to such changes as Professor Badger's committee see fit to make in the meantime. Professor St. John, a member of the N. C. A. A. committee, has submitted the following report of its activities:

"I am returning to you herewith receipted bill for postage used in distributing the National Collegiate Baseball Questionnaire.

It occurs to me that some report on this might well be used by you for Bulletin purposes. This questionnaire was sent to 501 institutions. Four hundred and sixteen questionnaires were filled out and returned. The report (to be presented to the December Convention) will show a summary of the replies received. The printing and paper used was furnished by our own department. The only expense we have collected from anybody on this has been this item for postage.

The National Collegiate Committee met with a committee from Organized Baseball in what amounted to an all-day session here in Columbus on June 2. The organized Baseball Committee consists of three men representing the National Association, which is the Minor League organization. These three men are G. M. Trautman, President of the American Association, who is also selected as Chairman of the Organized Baseball Committee; Earl Mann, President, Atlanta Baseball Club, Atlanta, Georgia; and Elmer Dailey, President, Mid-Atlantic League, Ebensburg, Pa. The Major Leagues were represented by two men each from the National League and the American League. Tom Yawkey, President, Boston American League, Boston, Mass., and Clark Griffith, President, Washington American League, Washington, D. C., represented the American League and for the National League, Robt. #### Contributions of the Colleges to the Olympic Fund

Mr. Frank McCormick, who has been good enough to accept reappointment as Chairman of the N. C. A. A. Olympic Finance Committee, reported on his plans in general, stating that he intended to solicit funds by states rather than by districts, and he requested suggestions from every source as to good people to place in charge of college soliciting, as well as secondary school, in the several states. The Executive Committee, expressing its appreciation of Mr. McCormick's efforts, voted to inform the colleges that any financial contributions to the Fund for American Participation in the 1940 Olympics should be sent direct to Mr. Frank McCormick, at the University of Minnesota.

The Committee were very happy to have Mr. Avery Brundage, President of the American Olympic Association, join them at luncheon, and listened with interest to his informal statement regarding present plans and prospects for the 1940 Olympic Games.
