*Champions who repeated.

The number of schools represented and the number of contestants entered was undoubtedly the largest in the history of this meet, or any championship meet ever held in this country, and gives evidence of the ever increasing interest in, and development of, the aquatic program in our schools and colleges.

Total receipts of the meet were $1,904.02, the expenditures were $669.84, leaving $1,234.38 to be pro-rated among the competing teams.

The occasion of the annual National Collegiate championships has of late years marked the outstanding gathering of everyone interested in swimming. The Rules Committee meets the Coaches Association, and have their conferences and joint meetings with other governing bodies at this time. At this year's meetings I believe more was accomplished than ever before. A joint meeting of National Collegiate and A. A. U. officials was held to bring our diving rules into conformity with the latest rules of the International Federation. Many rule changes were effected and a new policy with respect to the Guide was set up. Mr. Edward Kennedy, Editor of the Guide for many years, was appointed chairman of a representative editorial Board which will render him invaluable service and assistance in gathering material from and making contact with the various sections of the country. This was deemed necessary and is further evidence of the widespread interest and national interest in swimming.

A vote of thanks is extended to directors George Little and Harry Rockafeller, and to Rutgers University, for their generous hospitality. We also wish to express our appreciation to coach James Reilly and his staff for their conduct of what was undoubtedly the outstanding meet in our N. C. A. A. history.
