

Since basketball was invented there have been 36 games that are variations of this game. In the early days of basketball the number of players on the various sides was determined by the size of the court. Dr. Allen played here in 1907 and was a great free thrower. He at the present time ~~holds~~ holds the high scoring record of 26 points in one game. He was told after playing one year here in '07 by Dr. Naismith that there was a vacancy at Baker University. When Dr. Allen told him that he thought he could handle the position Dr. Naismith chuckled. Naismith called Dr. Allen the "Bloody <sup>Beggar</sup> Baker". Allen got the job and later came back to K.U.
