Prospects in the Big Six:

The 1942-43 Big Six race looks like a two-team affair between the co-champions of last year - Kansas and Oklahoma. But a word of warning to both--Missouri will not be the cellar team it was a year ago. The Tigers are nominated as the dark horse team because of the presence of most of the brilliant freshman team of last year. However, the wealth of tested material given to both the favorites means trouble for all other teams. Iowa State, Kansas State, and Nebraska will fight for second division honors. All Schools but the Cyclones have long lists of veterans of other years, Iowa State has three men back from last year's squad, none of whom played regular most of the year.
