

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN BASKETBALL STARTS 7th YEAR

Ned Irish, that basketball pepperbox, who was the first to conceive, (and prove!) that basketball can pay dividends, rather than continue as a white elephant, has arranged another attractive card of intersectional games at the Madison Square Garden. Beginning with the night of December 14th, and ending with the evening of March 10, Ned has arranged no less than 16 double headers, everyone of which should pack the famous auditorium to the rafters.

All in all, there will be 21 different teams to compete upon the New York floor. They will bring together teams from California to Rhode Island, Oklahoma to Michigan, several that have met for years, others that are facing each other for the first time.

The full schedule reads as follows:

- December 14 - C.C.N.Y. versus Oklahoma A. & M.
Long Island University versus Oregon
21 - New York University versus Syracuse
St. John's versus Oklahoma University
26 - C.C.N.Y. versus Santa Clara
Manhattan versus Illinois
28 - New York Univ. versus Minnesota
Fordham versus Kansas University
30 - St. John's versus Colorado
Long Island University versus Rice
- January 4 - Fordham versus North Carolina
Long Island University versus Michigan State
8 - New York University versus Manhattan
St. John's versus C.C.N.Y.
15 - St. Francis versus Bradley Tech
Long Island University versus DePaul
29 - Long Island University versus Butler
Rhode Island versus St. Francis
- February 5 - New York University versus St. Francis
Manhattan versus St. John's
8 - Long Island University versus Duquesne
C.C.N.Y. versus Fordham
14 - New York University versus Notre Dame
St. Francis versus Manhattan
19 - New York University versus Fordham
St. John's versus St. Joseph's
26 - New York University versus St. John's
C.C.N.Y. versus Manhattan
- March 5 - New York University versus Temple
Long Island University versus Toledo
10 - C.C.N.Y. versus New York University
St. John's versus St. Francis