"Ho, hum!" No, the young woman isn't bored with the subject. She's just proving Dr. E. R. Elbel's theory that 12:20 p. m. is a bad time of the day for alertness. One reacts quickest at 9:20 a. m. and 2:20 p. m., said the University of Kansas professor at the convention here of the Central District Physical Education association. The girl is Doris Christensen, 16, Central high school student who helped at the convention registration table.
