

WAR:MOG

WONG A. HOWE

Howe
Sincerely yours

You, I am kept as though it had been for scouting purposes, may be of some use to own amusement and, therefore, is possibly not as accurate or methodically trusting this information which, as I have indicated, was secured for my conditions that it certainly wasn't noticeable to me.

occurred at a considerable distance from the basket and under such because it there was blocking (and there no doubt was), it must have play, and if you can diagram it for me, I would appreciate getting it, was my blocking of your player. However, the play must have been a set times in the second half. For the life of me, I couldn't see that there I think they did this once in the first half and either three or four by one of your players, getting the ball and direct pass for a lay-up shot, side of the court, running parallel to the three-point line, entirely uncovered made several passes to a man standing out on the wing invariably from the catch. Possibly you can help me out on this. You will remember, Indians There was one of your players who completely missed and which I tried my best to which had to do with either of the two players in question. I was getting out of it and was in a sense, the only one who scored representing a team that first of all, I was watching the game and the pleasure I was getting including speed. This is a pretty good possession of the ball but please understand boys were more than the better. I would appreciate your but please understand me and, without passing any judgments, but I considered that the Indians So far as I am concerned, the Indians were a tremendously interesting one to entire game.

Hutch Walker
De Witt Potter
Johnny Krum
Jack Tilley
Jim Arnold

On the other hand, Indians committed nine fouls during the entire game not in a position to score. cases just about the ratio of aggressiveness of the two teams over the upon Kansas players not in a position to score. This, I believe, indicates that three of the Kansas fouls committed in the entire game were I am afraid that is about all the information I can give you, excepting in the second half. throughout the remainder of the game, becoming intensified defensively aggressiveness began about the middle of the first half and extended basketball in the first half than in the second, while Indians' in all, my chart indicates that Kansas played much more aggressive defensive. reasoning, would indicate that they were offensive fouls rather than committed in the Kansas half of the floor, and using the same line of in the first half, of the nine fouls committed by Kansas, four were