Dear Dr. Allen:

Since leaving Kansas City on Monday morning I have contacted a number of reliable sources by phone and wire relative to the type of team the University of Indiana has this year.
From the general concensus of opinion regarding the Hoosier Five can be condensed in the following paragraphs.

The Indiana offense is of the fast break type using crazy one-handed shots from any place on the floor while going full speed, but it must be remembered that while taking these off balanced shots the team follows hard on the board.
The teams that were successful in beating Indiana this year stopped their rebound game first then their fast breaking offense secondly.

Offense Set-Up

About the only set offense that Indiana uses, and it is really not what one might call a set offense, Mencke breaks down first to the free throw area and either breaks out for a pass or goes to the side line for a pass before shooting a right handed hook shot.

Outlined below is a brief summary of the personnel of the Indiana team: Du is best going around the outside and is just a fair shot from the floor but is good on driving in.
