

he will probably be efficient for ten to fifteen years, especially in the administrative field; then with no special concern regarding receipts he will be able to give his undivided attention to this field.

I really believe that this is a wonderful chance for you to secure one of his experience and ability without having to pay a top salary, which ordinarily would be necessary; and I am sending you on a separate sheet a brief outline of his experience, which you may present to others whom you may wish to consult concerning the consideration of his candidacy, which I, as you know, am hereby supporting most highly.

Very sincerely yours,

Director Natural Science Division
